Today We Celebrate the Second Sunday of Lent

FROM OUR PASTOR

Dear Parishioners,

This Second Sunday of Lent, the liturgy proposes this well-known episode when Jesus took the Apostles Peter, James and John with Him up a high mountain, and while He prayed He was transfigured. (cf. Mk 9: 2-10) I wish to emphasize that the Transfiguration of Jesus was essentially an experience of prayer.

We all know that during the season of Lent we are called to accompany our Lord in prayer. And that if the meditation on the Passion of our Lord is beneficial to our souls any time of the year, certainly the Lenten season is the most appropriate for it. "He who desires," says St. Bonaventure, "to go on advancing from virtue to virtue, from grace to grace, should meditate continually on the Passion of Jesus." And he adds that "there is no practice more profitable for the entire sanctification of the soul than the frequent meditation of the sufferings of Jesus Christ." Thus, during this and the upcoming Sundays of Lent I'd like share with you some reflections on the Passion of our Lord. And as we do so, it is my prayerful desire that in the one hand, we will have a lively fear of sin, and, on the other hand, we will grow in love for our Good Lord who promises "great graces to souls who meditate devoutly on [His] Passion." (Diary of St. Faustina Kowalska, 737)

Today, I'd like to focus our attention on the fact that Christ chose to suffer so much for us so that we may understand the great love He has for us. "I desire that you know more profoundly the love that burns in My Heart for souls, and you will understand this when you meditate on My Passion," said our Lord to St. Faustina.

"Two things," says Cicero, "make us know a lover—that he does good to his beloved, and that he suffers torments for him; and this last is the greatest sign of true love." God has indeed already shown His love for us by the many benefits He has bestowed upon us, as He did when He became Man; but His love would not have been satisfied by only doing good to us, says St. Peter Chrysologus, if He had not found the means to prove to us how much He loved us by also suffering and dying for us. "But he held it to be little if He showed his love without suffering;" and what greater means could God have discovered to prove to us the immense love He bears us than by making Himself man and suffering for us? "In no other way could the love of God towards us be shown," writes St. Gregory Nazianzen.

Now, when the Incarnate Word showed Himself to us, a God, wounded, crucified, and dying, did He not indeed give us the greatest proofs of the love that He has for us? "In the shame of the Passion is shown the greatest and incomparable love," says St. Bernard.

Jesus Christ could easily have obtained for us salvation without suffering and in leading a life of ease and delight; but no, St. Paul says, having joy set before Him, He endured the cross. He refused the riches, the delights, the honors of the world, and chose for Himself a life of poverty, and a death full of suffering and ignominy.

Why, then, did He choose for Himself so much suffering, and a death so cruel since by any act, being of infinite value, would have been sufficient to save the world, and infinite worlds besides? St. John Chrysostom answers saying, that a single prayer of Jesus would indeed have sufficed to redeem us; but it was not sufficient to show us the love that our God has for us: "That which sufficed to redeem us was not sufficient for love." And St. Thomas confirms this when he says, "Christ, in suffering from love, offered to God more than the expiation of the offence of the human race demanded." Because Jesus loved us so much, He desired to be loved very much by us; and therefore He did everything that He could, even unto suffering for us, in order to conciliate our love, and to show that there was nothing more that He could do to make us love Him.

"Meditate frequently on the sufferings which I have undergone for your sake, and then nothing of what you suffer for Me will seem so great to you. You please Me most when you meditate on My Sorrowful Passion. Join your little sufferings to My Sorrowful Passion, so that they may have an infinite value before My Majesty." (Diary of St. Faustina Kowalska, 1512)

May God bless you all!
Fr. Gustavo Nieto, IVE

Children and Youth Religious Education Program News

"The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us." John 1:14

The Family as First School of Human Virtues # 16

Let us now continue discussing the virtue of obedience, in which children need to be trained since their early years.

"Let us look at some of the more common faults in the way children obey, and then suggest some criteria which parents might use.

Problems like these:

- ⇒ Where children obey out of routine, just doing the physical thing, but not trying to do it well or paying attention to the real aims of the person giving instruction;
- ⇒ Where children focus on the minimum necessary to justify obedience, instead of obeying generously, even to the point of doing more than they are asked;
- ⇒ Where they obey, yet criticize the person who gives the order;
- ⇒ Where they dodge in order not to have to obey or are deceptive, offering false excuses, sometimes by appealing to some other authority ('Mommy said I didn't need to do it')
- ⇒ Where they try to convince the person in charge to them do something else instead, or try to convince him that they really don't need to do what they have been told to do;
- ⇒ Where they do it, thinking that they will get credit for it, credit which they will then try to trade on;
- ⇒ Where they say that they are going to do it and then they don't;
- ⇒ Where they look for the backing of other children to form an 'opposition' group.

How should parents approach problems like these?

Our Lady's Juggler, Chapter 6

By Anatole France

"Brother Maurice, with a deft hand, copied out these treatises upon sheets of vellum. Brother Alexander adorned the leaves with delicate miniature paintings. Here were displayed the Queen of Heaven seated upon Solomon's throne, and while four lions were on guard at her feet, around the nimbus which encircled the head hovered seven doves, which are the seven gifts of the Holy Spirit, the gifts, namely, of Fear, Piety, Knowledge, Strength, Counsel, Understanding, and Wisdom. For her companions she had six virgins with hair of gold, namely, Humility, Prudence, Seclusion, Submission, Virginity, and Obedience..."

Good news!

Three parish families have generously donated all of the funds required to replace our “well-worn” church carpet.

After years of accumulated candle wax, burns, stains, and ground-chewing gum, etc., we are happy to share that the new carpet has been selected with architectural advice for durability, ease of cleaning, as well as enhancing the look and feel of the interior.

We are working on a March schedule for installation which may take a few days—but you can view a sample of the carpet already purchased to give you an idea of what to expect. It is posted in the vestibule for everyone to view.

We ask your support as we install this positive upgrade to the church and that you join us in prayer of thanksgiving for this selfless Easter gift.
